

Current Research in Dairy Sciences

Current Research in Dairy Sciences is a high quality peer-reviewed scientific journal dedicated to publish cutting edge research work on all aspects of dairy sciences

Scope: biosynthesis, chemistry and physico-chemical properties of milk constituents; microbiology, enzymology, biotechnology and bioengineering; dairy engineering and new developments in processing; relevant emulsion science, food structure and texture; raw material quality; milk assembly; flavour and off flavour development; milks from non-bovine species; product development and usage of dairy ingredients in other foods.

Submit your most significant and interesting research findings for publication in Current Research in Dairy Sciences via online submission system at <http://scialert.com>.